INTRODUCTION

The Public Elementary-Secondary School Report, 1979-80 presents current enrollment and graduate data for all the public school administrative units in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Included among these administrative units are area vocational-technical schools and the intermediate unit boards which operate special education programs.

There are several tables in this report that classify the enrollment and graduate data into various categories. In addition to the tables, the data are further supported by the use of trend tables for the past decade, graphs and interpretive narrative.

PART I

ENROLLMENTS

Much of the information in this publication deals with enrollments in Pennsylvania's public schools. The overall enrollment pattern in the Commonwealth's public schools during the past decade is one of general decline. As a result of the continual drop each year, total elementary enrollments were 968,325 in 1979-80. This constituted a 23.4 percent reduction since 1970-71 when 1,264,247 were recorded. A comparison of this year's elementary enrollments with those of last year reveals three counties reporting gains and 64 counties showing declines. Over a six-year period, public school secondary enrollments showed a 12.1 percent decline from the peak of 1,137,660 reported in 1973-74 to the 1,000,476 tabulated for the 1979-80 school year. The number of counties exhibiting a drop in secondary-level enrollments since 1978-79 was 62, while five of them reported gains in the same period.

Pennsylvania's total public school enrollment for 1979-80 was 1,968,801. This represented a drop of 77,945 pupils (3.8 percent) from the 1978-79 figure and a 17.0 percent decline from the record-setting 2,370,665 reported in 1971-72. Total enrollments showed increases over last year's figures in only two counties while the other 65 counties reported declines. Statewide, the only levels which showed increments over last year's enrollment figures were grade 4, elementary exceptional and secondary exceptional.

Data contained in Tables 8 and 9 indicate that, in general, elementary-level pupils continue to be educated in smaller schools than are their secondary-level counterparts. Of the total 968,325 elementary pupils, 400,091 (41.3 percent) were in schools of fewer than 400 pupils each and only 1,262 (0.1 percent) were found in schools with 2,000 or more pupils.

On the other hand, only 69,065 (6.9 percent) of the 1,000,476 secondary pupils were enrolled in schools with fewer than 500 pupils while 69,073 (6.9 percent) of them were in schools with totals of 2,500 or more.

A breakdown of the Commonwealth's public school population on a race/ethnic basis shows 1,114 (0.06 percent) listed as American Indians or Alaskan Natives; 11,529 (0.58 percent), as Asian or Pacific Islanders; 244,580 (12.42 percent), as Black, not of Hispanic Origin; 29,709 (1.51 percent), as Hispanic; and 1,681,869 (85.43 percent), as White, not of Hispanic Origin.

Of the 3,805 public schools reported in the Commonwealth for school year 1979-80, 2,439 were classified as elementary; 974, as secondary; and 392, as combined.

During the past five years, the number of four-year high schools reported has increased steadily from 200 in 1975-76 to 243 in the 1979-80 school year. For the same five-year period, the number of three-year junior high schools has decreased from 227 to 192; and three-year senior high schools have dropped from 157 to 136. The total schools with secondary enrollments went from 1,384 in 1975-76 to 1,366 in 1979-80.

For the 1979-80 school year, there were 229 approved middle schools reported. This amounted to a seven-year increment of 130 (131.3 percent) from the 99 approved middle schools reported in 1972-73 and a gain of nine (4.1 percent) over the 220 on last year's file. The number of pupils served by these middle schools stood at 87,906 in 1972-73, climbed to 156,575 for 1978-79 and has now reached 158,313 for the current year, 1979-80.

A look at the vocational-technical school data for the 1979-80 school year shows a total enrollment of 82,527 in 78 schools. This is a decrease of 1,114 individuals (1.3 percent) below the 83,641 reported in 76 schools for the 1978-79 school year. Vocational-technical enrollments for 1974-75 numbered 76,222 in 71 schools and for 1968-69 amounted to 9,857 pupils in only 32 schools.

PART III

SELECTED DATA BY ADMINISTRATIVE UNIT

Table 31 contains some of the most frequently requested data items for the various public school administrative units--school districts, intermediate unit offices and area vocational-technical schools. All intermediate unit offices that operated schools are recorded on the first page of the table. Succeeding pages list all school districts and area vocational-technical schools in county order.

The five largest school districts of the Commonwealth, in terms of total enrollment, were Philadelphia (231,959), Pittsburgh (48,313), Allentown (14,771), Erie City (14,439) and Bethlehem Area (13,324). At the same time, the five districts which reported the fewest pupils enrolled were Jenkintown (594), Midland Boro (568), Shanksville-Stonycreek (527), Salisbury-Elk Lick (496) and Austin Area (341).

Figure 4 reveals the distribution of Pennsylvania's public school districts on the basis of their total enrollments. While 59.3 percent of the districts enrolled from 1 to 2,999 pupils each, another 6.5 percent included 8,000 or more pupils each. All other districts fell in the interval reporting from 3,000 to 7,999 pupils per district.
